

POSITIONAL LOTTERY BET SLIP AND CHART

ABSTRACT

A lottery bet slip is disclosed, having boxes (boards) with numbers divided into two or more areas (positions). Said bet slip numbers are divided into two or more positions with the use of lines, lines in color(s), or combination(s) of both to define said positions. Further, said bet slip numbers are divided into two or more positions with the use of color(s) in the back ground to define said positions. Further yet, said bet slip numbers are divided into two or more positions with the use of color(s) to define said positions. And still further, said bet slips are provided in size(s) to fit lottery machinery used to record and register said lottery bet slip(s).

Additionally, a chart is disclosed, composed of lottery bet slips with boards having numbers divided into two or more positions. Said chart relates to said bet slip in selected position(s) with the use of lines, utilizing color(s) for lines, numbers or background, or a combination to define said positions. The composition of similar marked boards helps a player to manage game activities. Charts made up of multiple bet slip-like boards divided into two or more positions are used for tracking, monitoring, selecting, mixing, and identifying numbers by hot and cold position(s). Charts are also designed to relate to any bet slip with boxes to match those of winning numbers drawn. A player is better able to determine active and inactive areas of numbers of a bet slip. In addition, a player is better able to compile bet slip records to relate to numbers played and winning numbers drawn by position(s).

FIELD OF THE INVENTION

The present invention is related to providing a bet slip having boards containing numbers divided into two or more positions.

The present invention is also related to providing a bet slip having boards containing numbers divided into two or more positions and compiled in a format, similar to a chart. Said positions are marked and defined with lines, with the use of color(s), or both.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PRIOR ART

Lottery bet slips are divided into a series of boards containing numbers for players to select from to play games. Each board of a bet slip has continuous numbers from one to approximately 10, 20, 30, 40, 50, 60, and more. The numbers of each board are organized into one position; approximately 1 to 10 numbers, 1 to 20, 1 to 30, 1 to 40, 1 to 50 and so on. Further, when winning numbers are drawn over a specific period of time, a player has no 'visual bet slip picture' of hot and cold areas of said bet slip to relate to before selecting numbers to play. Further yet, when winning numbers are drawn, there is no visual bet slip history to show patterns of previous hits, upward and downward trends of numbers, hot and cold numbers by position(s) or otherwise.

SUMMARY OF THE PRESENT INVENTION

Accordingly, an object of the present invention is to provide a bet slip having boxes (Boards), containing numbers divided into two or more areas of a board called positions for playing
